

REPUBLICAN WOMEN IN LIVELY MEETING AT AFTERNOON TEA

The first of a series of novel G. O. P. teas was held Wednesday afternoon at the Knights of Pythias hall by the Republican Women's league of Phoenix. The G. O. P. elephant came into its own in Phoenix at that time, particularly when he appeared in the form of delectable cookies served with tea. The little ivory elephants worn as charms have found instant favor and were very much in evidence during the afternoon.

Mrs. P. A. Tharaldson, campaign song leader, directed the singing of the new campaign songs, including Al Johnson's big hit, "Harding, You're the Man for Us." Another interesting feature of the program was the reproduction of speeches by Harding, Coolidge and Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, the records being used for the first time in Phoenix.

Judge R. E. Sloan was the principal speaker of the afternoon. He outlined clearly the issues of the state campaign, emphasizing the position of Governor Campbell on questions relating to the conduct of the state land department, good roads and reclamation projects. Introducing the name of each Republican candidate, he presented for consideration their public careers. His speech was interrupted by frequent bursts of applause, which was particularly prolonged when he introduced the name of Governor Campbell. At the close of his address Judge Sloan was tendered a rising vote of thanks and three cheers for G. O. P. success were given by his audience.

Mrs. H. A. Guild, who was an alternate to the national convention and who has just returned from the east where she visited republican national headquarters in Washington and Chicago, brought an inspiring message to Arizona women from the newly enfranchised women of the east.

"Everywhere in the East," said Mrs. Guild, "the activity and interest of women in political matters is unprecedented. They realize the importance of woman's place in politics and they are working side by side with the men of the Republican party for the success which will certainly be ours."

While in Washington Mrs. Guild met a group of prominent educators who had been in correspondence with Governor Campbell with reference to child welfare legislation, she told her audience, and they were warm in their expression of admiration and appreciation of his co-operation and interest.

Governor Campbell stands out among the governors of the United States," said one of these admirers, "and the people of Arizona might well be proud to have him continue in the office of governor of that state."

Miss Elsie Toles, Republican candidate for superintendent of public instruction, spoke briefly on the needs and the possibilities of the educational system in Arizona. She received the unanimous endorsement of the audience. Other teas are being planned to be held from time to time before November 2, the dates of which will be announced later. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. J. L. B. Alexander, president of the Republican Women's league; Mrs. B. E. Marks, vice president; Miss Frances Elliott, secretary; Mrs. Lilly Ellis, assistant secretary; acting with Miss Hannah C. Ekelston, regional vice chairman for Maricopa county and northern Arizona. Special program will be arranged and all women who are interested in Republican success are cordially invited to be present.

PROPAGATION AND CONSERVATION OF GAME AND FISH

State Game Warden
By JOE V. PROCHASKA

The propagation and conservation of game and fish is one of the most vital questions which confronts not only the people of Arizona but the entire country. The excellent and permanent roads which are being built in every county in this state and in every state in the Union are fast bringing to our very doors the once isolated and virgin district in which all sportsmen and lovers of wild and out-door life seek recreation. The large number of automobiles have made it possible for thousands of people to penetrate every portion of our state, and to every thinking sportsman, the conservation of game and fish must be intelligently protected, conserved and propagated.

Arizona still has plenty of large and small game which can be saved only by prompt action and the creation of a department of conservation, which will unquestionably result in a more economical administration of our game laws and eventually in a higher degree of efficiency of service to all lovers of wild life and out-door recreation.

We cannot progress to the full measure of our marvelous possibilities unless the people vote for the creation of the state conservation commission.

The establishment of this commission will infuse new life and vigor into the game laws, additional powers can be delegated by the legislature, game and bird refuges will be created, fish hatcheries will be built, bird study will be placed in our schools, and the value of sport will be better understood.

All sportsmen know that in order to meet the steadily increasing drain on our game and fish supply, the state game department must perform constructive work and assume aggressive leadership. Few, however, realize that under the present organization such constructive work and aggressive leadership is almost impossible for the limitations placed upon the state game warden's authority, tenure of office and method of selection by the game law itself.

Until this law is changed it is not only useless but unjust to expect from the state game department that full measure of service for which the public pays and to which it is entitled.

The present game law cripples the game department by limiting the assured tenure of office to two years, regardless of how good or how poor the service delivered. The problem of building up our game supply is so big and so difficult that the two years is barely time enough to start. If the state game warden actually delivers the goods he should be retained as long as he will stay, if he does not deliver the goods he should not be retained at all.

At present the game warden is told to develop our stock of game but is given no authority to do anything towards that end except to prosecute those who steal it. It is like hiring a general manager to develop a farm but limiting his authority to the prosecution of trespassers. Prosecuting thieves does not produce crops and it is crops we are after.

Of course it is unsafe to delegate legislative powers to any one man, no

MEXICAN EXHIBIT AND PROGRAM TO BE FAIR FEATURE

One of the most complete exhibitions of all those to be made in the Americanization department of the 1920 state fair will be that of the Mexican people. Since they are residents it will be less difficult to obtain real local color in this division that it may be for some of the other peoples.

Mrs. F. C. Green, teacher of the class in Americanization under the local committee is directing the Mexican day program. She has a full knowledge of Mexican customs and habits, since she spent years among these people in their own country. After Mrs. Green had done Americanization work among many Spanish peoples she was sent for by the Mexican government to teach in the schools of that country.

"We will try in our exhibits and program to give visitors an idea of the representative Mexicans," said Mrs. Green. "They are a fine and interesting people and I want Americans to know them as they really are in their own country. We will have exhibits of whatever Mexican wares we can get. Several of the members of my class have written to relatives below the border for samples of fine pottery, brookery, drawn work, pictures and other things."

"Our program will consist of folk dances, singing, and, if possible, the Phoenix Mexican orchestra will play. Armada Vendrell, a charming child of 11, will dance in costume several folk dances. Her sister, Marie Vendrell, will sing the Mexican national air.

Under the Americanization movement a Mexican mother's club has been organized in Phoenix. This body will show samples of work that has been taught them by the Americanization work, samples of sewing, mending and quilting.

Mrs. Green will be assisted in her department by two native women, Mrs. Munoz and Miss Nendrell.

The Americanization movement among Mexican women has been aided materially in Phoenix by the D. A. R., which has taken upon itself the supplying of refreshments and sewing materials for the mothers' meetings.

Mrs. W. F. Hammett, Mrs. Scott White and Mrs. Ben Ferguson, who have been representing the movement with active work in this movement, are interesting themselves also in the Americanization exhibits for the fair. In this connection it is announced that the D. A. R. is preparing a poster as one of the displays.

DANCING AT TOFT'S ATTRACTS REVELLERS

One of those joyous dancing nights at Toft's Country club last night, and as was expected all Phoenix was there. It was just a short, pleasant trip to the Country club where the best dancing music, music as it should be played is found. It took months of travel and selecting to procure that band and bring this galaxy of instruments to Phoenix.

Harmony is the only word needed for every note of the instruments. Excellent musicians have played in the city during the past two seasons and dance lovers have learned to choose matter how good a man he is. But under the new commission plan the department is no longer a one man proposition. Regulative powers can be safely delegated to the proposed conservation commission. In the way all matters pertaining to the propagation, protection and conservation of our game and fish will be automatically provided for.

only the best. No more do you hear the cry of "jazz, jazz" from the dancers. They all want the dreamy stuff now that carries them over the wonderful floor of the Country club with a certain responsive thrill that jazz never could produce.

Canfield's Russian horn proved to be the outstanding musical hit again last night, for time after time requests came for everything from the oldest of Oriental pieces to the latest popular productions. There is always one thing certain that can be said about Toft's Country club each day, "all Phoenix will be there again tonight."

KENNEL CLUB ASKS FANCIERS TO ENTER FAVORITES IN SHOW

"Probably no city in the entire southwest has such a large number of Time pedigreed dogs," said R. A. Kirk, secretary of the Copper State Kennel club yesterday. That means that every owner of a high class dog should be interested enough in the breeding of better dogs to enter his pet in the forthcoming dog show to be held in conjunction with the Arizona state fair. "Premium lists and entry blanks have now arrived for the dog show to be held on October 8, 9 and 10 under the auspices of the Copper State Kennel club. We have had inquiries about the dog show from all over the state, and T. H. Adams, 30 South Fourth avenue will be glad to furnish prospective exhibitors with them at once. He will also be glad to give all information concerning entries."

The premium list this year is one of the largest and best ever given in a western dog show. It includes 18 copper cups valued at $25 each, other copper trophies, and the club's copper medal will be awarded to the finest dog of nearly every breed.

Dogs will be housed in the permanent brick building across from the main entrance to the grandstand, and every provision will be taken to insure their health and comfort. The show will be benched and fed by the Spratt's people who have an enviable reputation for caring for dogs. A watchman will be in the building during the night to insure safety of the animals on exhibit.

Although the dog show will be held under the auspices of the American Kennel club, a dog does not have to be registered to enter. If your dog is a winner see Mr. Adams, superintendent, at once about entering him.

PRESCOTT, Oct. 3.—Under the auspices of the Arizona State laboratory, a special milk and cream contest will be conducted during the Northern Arizona State Fair. Dr. John W. This is necessary for fair competition. For the best exhibits of milk and cream, beautiful silver trophy cups will be awarded, also ribbons.

NEAR EAST RELIEF URGENTLY IN NEED OF OLD CLOTHING

The Arizona office of the Near East Relief has just received an urgent call for more old clothing from Charles G. Vickery, national secretary of the organization, who is now in the near east investigating the needs of the people and mapping out the plan of relief for the next year.

The telegram follows: "Mr. Charles P. Willis, Phoenix, Arizona: Need for old clothes in Caucasus simply indescribable. Quantity needed unlimited. If necessary issue new call. Vickery."

In referring to the need for old clothes Mr. Willis says that Arizona has done almost nothing so far in this line. While this state did well last year in giving money for food for the orphan children, it was felt that the distance from the seaboard was such that the eastern states could take care of the old clothes problem. It has been found, however, that the need is far greater than the eastern states can supply and the call has now come to Arizona to help in this great work.

"They come to us," says a worker in the near east, "these hungry, ragged refugees in Armenia, some in rags and some in tags; but there are no 'velvet gowns', no gowns at all. In fact, nothing that clings to them that could by any chance be called a garment."

It is believed that a carload of old clothes can be sent out of this state and all Arizonans are urged to be requested to look through their closets, attics and store rooms and send the warm things for which they have no further use to the Near East Relief, 42 East Monroe street, Phoenix. It is hoped that the car load will be ready by Oct. 15, when it will be sent across the continent properly labelled.
